The Son Of Sam Cult

BY Michael A. Hoffman II

The Son of Sam killings which terrorized the metropolitan New York area in 1977 were unquestionably the work of more than "one lone nut", the man officially convicted of the crimes, David Berkowitz.

The cult numbered 22 men and women who decapitated dogs (and drank their blood) and raped, strangled, shot and arranged "accidents" for innocent victims and troublesome cult members alike. Its theory and inverted "liturgy" came from Aleister Crowley, Eliphas Levi, Wicca, the Golden Dawn and Basque animists (1).

The cultists communicated in a twilight language (sandhyabhasa in Tantric terminology) code. This cryptic communication system was formulated based upon an amazing synchronicity dating to the 19th century. The Son of Sam symbol had been mailed to Establishment journalist Jimmy Breslin for maximum public exposure. The top two words on the symbol in the original design by Eliphas Levi read "Berkaial" and "Amasarak". Word inversion is important in the "upside-down" twilight language world. "Amasarak" is an anagram for "Sam Car". "Berkaial" has as its root word, "Berk", the nickname of David Berkowitz.

Sam Carr is the father of John Wheat Carr (note fertility symbolism in the name "Wheat"), the alleged Satanist who was probably assassinated (officially he suicided) at an "Air Force City" (Minot, North Dakota). Sam Carr's daughter is known as "Wheat" also. She was a former dispatcher for the Yonkers Police Department and in some instances handled communications having to do with the Son of Sam case itself. Sam and his daughter Wheat also just so happened to be neighbors of Berkowitz. The Son of Sam patsy, in what was perhaps a moment of lucidity in his otherwise programmed, hypnotic state, "confessed" that it was Sam Carr's dog that was ordering him to kill people -- hence the genesis of the world-wide monniker attached to the case -- the Son of "Sam" (originally regarded by the public as meaning that Berkowitz was the son of Sam the dog, or thought he was. But the dog's name was Harvey so the reference is in truth at least partly to the elder Carr).

Is there some sub-rosa gesturing operant here? Some weird trickster or clown concept at work whereby the perpetrators of the crime are purposefully leaving a trail of clues about themselves or what they want investigative reporters and others to think they are? The allusion to the Carr dog as a controller might have been intended as a hint about government cult controllers since two members of the Carr family were government agents (John Wheat was a U.S. Airman; sister Wheat was employed by the Yonkers Police Dept.).

Could the Black Magic adept Eliphas Levi have programmed or shaped the Son of Sam happenings from the 19th century? Were Sam Carr and David Berkowitz pre-destined for their roles? In August of 1977 Berkowitz left behind in his apartment, at the time of his arrest, a note in handwriting authenticated as his which stated: "I, David Berkowitz, have been chosen, chosen since birth, to be one of the executioners for the cult..." (2) Berkowitz is adopted and his name is not that of his natural parents.

After the cultists finished their ritual work on the Son of Sam yantra inspired by Levi, they performed a ritual murder at the symbol site of the Elephas Discotheque. In the cult's first letter to Jimmy Breslin, whoever actually penned it referred to himself as the "chubby behemoth." A behemoth can be described as "elephant-like" and through the Latin derivative for elephant, "elephas", we complete the circle and arrive back at the Elephas Discotheque and the occult patron, Eliphas Levi.

An important magica sexualis rite involving the behemoth or elephant force as employed within this esoteric context, was performed at the St. Francis hotel in San Francisco more than 60 years ago. The phrase, "St. Francis" is quite important in Western twilight language of the hermetic mystery schools. For some reason the "friars of Francis" are vital to masonic parody, the most notorious being the dark charades of the Hell Fire Club and its leader, Sir Francis Dashwood. The members of the club were drawn from the highest echelons of British officialdom and referred to each other as "friar".

At the St. Francis hotel in California's mystical city named after St. Francis, another "chubby behemoth", silent film star Fatty Arbuckle, raped Virginia Rappe with a wine bottle (note the similarities in "raped" and "Rappe"). According to psychic researcher James Shelby Downard, in occult belief, this penetration with a wine bottle is supposed to produce the "must" of the elephant. Arbuckle's rape of the lovely Rappe woman led to the destruction of his career and was widely publicized in detail. The sex magic ritual at the St. Francis hotel was imprinted on the subconscious of the public Group Mind in a process of human alchemy which does not require a conscious understanding by the millions of target percipients in order to fulfill the desired objective of the imprint.

The details of the Son of Sam case were also heavily publicized and therefore also constituted a kind of "open" ritual, the particulars of which are unmistakably imbued with an attempt to communicate directly to the subconscious of the millions who read or heard about it, by means of a twilight language code which, very much like Jungian archetypes, do not require conscious understanding, but process humanity subliminally.

The Son of Sam cult performed many rituals at Untermeyer park, Yonkers, a Wiccan wonderland built by an eccentric millionaire. Part of these ceremonies were held along aqueducts which once served as the long-distance gutters of New York City. One of the cult's public letters to Breslin contained disguise-word references to these gutters, representative of the so-called "spiritual fecal matter" or tantric kalas present during sorcery operations. Like the chubby behemoth symbol, this too has echoes in other occult practice. A well-to-do mason in San Antonio, Texas used a ruse (mosquito hygiene) to construct a gothic Bat Tower which housed bats. It featured a central shaft which collected the resulting bat feces or guano. This guano material served a ritual role in the Anglo-Chicano Comazotz bat cult patronized by Southwest freemasons of the highest initiation.

John Wheat Carr's brother, Michael Carr another "son of Sam", was killed in an automobile "accident" in Manhattan. Michael Carr was a member of the hierarchy of the Church of Scientology, the founder of which is Lafayette Ron Hubbard, a former associate of the late Dr. John Whiteside Parsons, a rocket scientist at the California Institute of Technology and a leader in the California branch of Aleister Crowley's Ordo Templi Orientis (OTO).

The OTO practices geomancy and diabolic liturgy on Mount Palomar, Griffith's Park and the so-called "Devil's Gate", all located in the greater Los Angeles/Pasadena area. Some of these sites would later serve as the murder and dumping ground of victims of the "Hillside Strangler", i.e. Kenneth Bianchi, a private security cop and part-time hypnotist.

In November of 1979, anonymous letters arrived at the Santa Clara, California Sheriff's office tipping the authorities to a connection between the Son of Sam cult and the murder of one Arlis Perry in a church on the grounds of Stanford University in 1974. Queried by California policemen, Berkowitz told them from his Attica Prison cell that Mrs. Perry was stalked from Bismarck, North Dakota to California and brutally molested and murdered. He gave the motive for the killing as the Perry woman's attempt to minister to devil-worshippers and to have them forsake Satan for Jesus. Berkowitz linked Mrs. Perry's death to an "underground Dakota cult". Bismarck is a short distance from John Wheat Carr's hq at Minot. Detective Sgt. Kenneth Kahn of the Santa Clara police dept. told reporters that after Mrs. Perry's body was returned to North Dakota and buried in Bismarck, that her grave marker was stolen. Graveyard vandalism is common to "cults of the shadow".

Another, slightly more recent casualty of the Son of Sam "curse" is David Berkowitz's 56 year-old attorney, Leon Stern. Stern was shot execution-style, in the head, in a killing that has all the earmarks of a professional "hit" disguised as a house burglary. Thousands of dollars in jewels were missing after the murder at Stern's Nassau County home. (3).

Other ear-marks come to the fore in the knowledge that John Wheat Carr kept the severed ear of a German Shepherd dog on his wall. These dogs have strong police and military associations and the posting of an ear from one of them on a wall would be a symbolical means of indicating awareness on Carr's part of official surveillance of his activities. It may also be a possible indicator of the level of programming of the cultists. The grizzled, old 19th century American populists who combatted the masonic assassins of that era, observed that low-level initiates, when apprehended, tended toward suicide and self-incrimination. The old-timers tagged this disposition as "masonic apoplexy". Control-levels this sophisticated in the 18th and 19th centuries must, by now, have reached very high levels of competence. (4).

David Berkowitz, like so many others involved in these almost formula occult killings, had a police and military background. He served as a youthful auxiliary policeman in the Bronx and as a U.S. soldier in Korea. It was while in Korea that Berkowitz allegedly ingested LSD and "partied" to music by Jimi Hendrix, the late rock guitar wizard. Some versions of Hendrix's musical paean to LSD entitled "Purple Haze" reportedly include faint, repeated whispers of the words "son of Sam". It was while in this phase of his life that Berkowitz began to refer to himself as the "master of reality", a line borrowed from the spooky rock band, "Black Sabbath". Upon his discharge from the military, Berkowitz went to work as a private rent-a-cop (5).

Yet another 19th century synchronicity in this case relates to the murder weapon used by Berkowitz and other Sam cultists. It is a "Bulldog .44" obtained via a security guard in Texas, near the town of Beaumont, where John Wheat Carr's former wife resided. For a long time the Son of Sam killings were referred to by number as the ".44 Caliber killings". This launched the number into the public consciousness and while I have been unable to hit on the possible significance of #44 to the case in a twilight language sense (although 44 represents a doubling of the 22 members of the cult), this is not the only "Bulldog" revolver to obtain notoriety in the lore of American crime. Charles Guiteau, the assassin of President Garfield, used a silver Bulldog revolver which he said he picked especially because it would look so magnificent in a museum display case (6). With a regularity that gets down right monotonous, it turns out that "Bulldog Guiteau was another government official, a minor civil service functionary. If dog intelligence really does operate the universe, as Vedic Hindus say, perhaps this is its running sick joke on us.

For a long-time an accountant based in Manhattan was a prime suspect for leading the Sam cult. He knew John Wheat Carr, he resembles a composite sketch of a Sam murderer, and he worked in the same building as one of the Sam victims (Christine Freund). It is intriguing that a kind of numbers expert would be a suspect as the Sam coordinator, considering the .44 tag and the fact that one of those wounded in Queens in the Sam series was shot on Oct. 23; 23 being a number of Fortean significance. How this accountant became a prime suspect is a story in itself.

THE ACCOUNTANT ???

If one Son of Sam victim provided the description for this police sketch, and a second confirmed it, why does it look nothing at all like Berkowitz?

Suffice it to say that it was through this suspicion that the whole "lone nut" white-wash of the Sam case began to unravel. The initial unraveler was a religious devotee of the "Seer of Bayside", the heterodox Catholic visionary Veronica Leucken. The devotee, Det. Henry Cinotti, was brought up on charges by the New York police dept. when it was learned that Cinotti's suspicions about the accountant were based solely on the ESP intuitions of Mrs. Leucken. But oddly enough, facts began to emerge which did indeed point to the accountant. What is Veronica Leucken's role in all of this? How far-reaching and how fantastic are the links of the Son of Sam cult?

One final portion in the formula (or the script), calls for official, Establishment denial and cover-up of any but a "lone nut" angle to Sam, even while on different levels and through "alternative" channels the System encourages recognition of the symbolic and occult features of this case.

ABC News 20/20 fulfilled this pattern in its TV special on the human monster Henry Lee Lucas which never once mentioned Lucas's own references to Satanic cult involvement in his crimes. David Berkowitz successfully protested a movie of a few years ago that would have presented the standard "no conspiracy/single gunman" explanation; however, sometime in the next few months a new Son of Sam movie will be broadcast on national TV which, as of this writing, will downplay or totally ignore all cultic factors in the case.

Templarism

In this study, we shall examine Templarism as it exists within Freemasonry. But first a brief look at the medieval Knights Templar will be helpful.

The Templars were founded in Jerusalem in the year 1118 by Hugh de Payens. While the Order outwardly practiced the Christian religion, there was an inner circle which was Cabalistic and Gnostic. It is believed that several of the founders of the Templars were initiates in the Order of the Assassins -- a secret society that was working to destroy the Islamic faith.

In "Knight Templarism Illustrated" (1915), Blanchard writes: "During the middle ages, the most eminent warriors and noblemen of Europe entered its ranks. The Knights of the Temple became the bulwark of the Holy Land against the Saracens. France, England and other countries formed associations (Priories) of Templar Knights each with its own Grand Master and other officers. Such great wealth was accumulated in the treasuries of the Order that in the year 1185 its annual income represented a sum equal to thirty millions of dollars. The Templars were bankers and loaned money on their own terms. But wealth and prosperity naturally led to licentiousness, neglect of Templar law and in the end destruction." (As quoted in "Occult Theocracy" by Lady Queenborough.)

In CT #1, we wrote: "...when the Templars returned to Europe, they threatened the world 'with a gigantic revolution.' They plotted to unite the nations of Europe, and place them all under control of an Imperial Messiah. Eventually, Philip the Fair and Pope Clement V acted against the Order."

The Templars were accused of several crimes including trampling on the crucifix, giving the obscene kiss (i.e. kissing the buttocks of the Grand Master), and human sacrifice. They also worshipped the goat-idol Baphomet -- an idol also venerated by the Order of the Assassins.

In the secret ceremonies of the Templars, the members dressed in white surcoats, emblazoned with the red cross of the Crusaders. When a new member was to be admitted, he was brought forward by two initiates. The Grand Master would then hand him a crucifix which the aspirant would be required to spit upon and then throw upon the floor and trample.

Next, the Grand Master would take an infant from the black-draped altar. The infant was usually wrapped in a black blanket. An initiate would hold the infant over a chalice, and then the Grand Master (or in some cases a renegade priest) would slit the throat allowing the blood to flow into the chalice. The novice was then required to drink the blood. The rest of the members would then do likewise. (See "The Blood Cults" by Charles Lefebure.)

In the year 1307, Grand Master Jacques de Molay, along with 60 of his Knights was arrested in Paris. Shortly after, all Templars in France were arrested. On May 12, 1310, 54 were burnt at the stake. On March 18, 1314, De Molay and his officers suffered a similar fate.

In the 30th degree of the Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, the Mason is told that he has now entered the degree charged with the avenging of the death of Jacques de Molay. This degree is called Knight Kadosh, meaning holy or elect.

In this initiation, the Grand Master charges the candidate: "Your assistance at this juncture is invaluable, as we have crime to punish and innocence to protect. Persecution and oppression are raging. The religious and political rulers of the world will not render that justice which they have sworn to render, and we cannot endure their encroachments any longer."

The Grand Master then walks over to a table upon which are three skulls. One skull wears a papal tiara. Another wears a laurel wreath. The third wears a regal crown. The Grand Master takes a dagger and stabs the skull with the papal tiara. The candidate repeats: "Down with Imposture! Down with crime!" The Grand Master and the candidate then kneel before the second skull and say: "Everlasting glory to the immortal martyr of virtue." They then go to the third skull and repeat: "Down with tyranny! Down with crime!"

The Grand Pontiff then addresses the candidate: "You have already been informed that among the Knights Kadosh truth and reality take the place of symbols, and even now your sagacity will partly raise the curtain which cannot be entirely removed until you have sustained new trials. In all the preceding degrees you must have observed that the object of Scotch Masonry is to overthrow all kinds of superstition, and that by admitting in her bosom on terms of the strictest equality, the members of all religions, of all creeds and of all countries, without any distinction whatever, she has, and indeed can have, but one single object and that is to restore to the Grand Architect of the Universe, to the common father of the human race those who are lost in the maze of impostures, invented for the sole purpose of enslaving them. The Knights Kadosh recognize no particular religion, and for that reason we demand of you nothing more than to worship God...We mean the existence of a first great cause, whom we call God Almighty."

Later the Grand Provost of Justice points a sword at the candidate's heart and the candidate repeats this oath:

"I (name) of my own free will and accord do hereby solemnly and sincerely promise and swear to keep faithfully the secrets of the sublime degree of Knight Kadosh and strictly to obey the statutes of the order I further solemnly promise and swear to protect innocence and to punish crime, to help all in distress, to do all in my power to crush oppressors and to defend the oppressed. Every Knight Kadosh shall be to me as if the ties of blood had united us... All of which I promise to do, under the penalty of death. So help me God."

The candidate then enters a large mausoleum shaped in the form of a pyramid and hung with red and black draperies. A funeral urn crowned with laurel rests on a platform next to the papal tiara and the royal crown. The mausoleum is thick with incense and illuminated by five candles. On the west, there is an altar containing a human skull inlaid with silver. There is also some wine and a loaf of bread which is covered by cloth. There is a ladder which the candidate must ascend.

The Grand Master tells the candidate: "My brother, you are now convinced that the degree of Knight Kadosh is the apex of the Masonic edifice. It contains all the science of Masonry."

The Grand Master points to the papal tiara and says: "This represents the tiara of the cruel and cowardly Pontiff, who sacrificed to his ambition the illustrious order of those Knights Templar of whom we are the true successors. A crown of gold and precious stones ill befits the humble head of one who pretends to be the successor, the Vicar, of Jesus of Nazareth. It is therefore the crown of an impostor, and it is in the name of Him who said, 'Neither be ye called Masters' that we trample it under our feet."

The candidate and all present then step on the papal crown shouting "Down with Imposture!"

Keeping in mind that Knight Kadosh is the 30th degree, study this quote from Albert Pike: "That which we must say to the crowd is -- We worship a God, but it is the God one adores without superstition. To you, Sovereign Grand Inspectors General, we say this, that you may repeat it to the Brethren of the 32nd, 31st, and 30th degrees -- The MASONIC RELIGION should be, by all of us initiates of the high degrees, maintained in the purity of THE LUCIFERIAN DOCTRINE. If Lucifer were not God, would Adonay (the God of the Christians) whose deeds prove his cruelty, perfidy, and hatred of man, barbarism and repulsion for science, would Adonay and his priests, calumniate him?"

It is also possible to become a Templar by taking the York Rite instead of the Scottish Rite. In the York Rite the 10th degree is that of Knight Templar. In his book "Christianity and American Freemasonry", William Whalen describes the initiation: "Early in the Templar initiation ceremony the candidate is seated blindfolded in the Chamber of Reflection. When he removes his hoodwink he sees a Bible, a bowl of water and napkin, and a skull and cross bones. He is asked to complete a questionnaire which asks, 'Should you ever be called upon to draw your sword, will you wield it in the defence of the Christian religion?' At the conclusion of the Knight Templar's obligation the new Knight swears, 'All this I most solemnly and sincerely promise and vow, with a firm and steadfast resolution to keep and perform the same, binding myself under no less penalty than that of having my head smote off and placed on the highest spire of Christendom, should I ever willfully or knowingly violate any part of this solemn obligation of a Knight Templar, so help me God and keep me steadfast to keep and perform the same.' "

Whalen continues: "The candidate faces a triangular arrangement of 12 candles to represent the 12 Apostles. In the center of the table a skull rests on a Bible. In memory of the apostasy of Judas the candidate is asked to extinguish one of the tapers 'and let it teach you this important lesson, that he who would violate his vow or betray his trust is worthy of no better fate than that which Judas suffered.' "

"The fourth libation to Simon of Cyrene is drunk from a skull and the fifth, of pure wine, is drunk to immortality. 'This pure wine I now take in testimony of my belief in the mortality of the body and the immortality of the soul; and as the sins of the whole world were once visited upon the head of our Saviour, so may all the sins of the person whose skull this once was, in addition to my own, be heaped upon my head, and may this libation appear in judgement against me, both here and hereafter, should I ever knowingly or willfully violate this my most solemn vow of a Knight Templar; so help me God and keep me steadfast.' To enforce the fifth libation the assembled Knights draw swords and point them toward the candidate's throat."

Let us close this study by noting that in Russia in 1916, there was an anti-Tsarist secret society that used the name "Knights Templar". They were violently opposed to the Orthodox Church. They invoked the rites of the medieval Templars to justify a policy of political assassination -- and they aided the Communist seizure of power in 1917!

What Is Grand Orient Freemasonry?

By Inquire Within

FROM THE PATRIOT (October 11, 1945)

Cardinal Caprara, in a confidential memoire, October 1787, said:--" The danger approaches, for from all these dreams of Illuminism, Swedenborgianism and Freemasonry, there must evolve a terrifying reality. The visionaries have their day, the revolution which they forbode will have its day."

Consorting with the chief disciples of Weishaupt, Mirabeau was initiated in Brunswick into the final Mysteries of Illuminism. Already he knew the value of Masonry in revolution. In France he introduced these mysteries among the Philalethes, and it was then decided to illuminise all the lodges of France. Along with two Illuminati, Bode and the Baron de Busche, it was resolved to adopt the Bavarian mysteries without changing the old forms of the lodges, to illuminise them without revealing the name of the sect from whom the mysteries were received, and only using Weishaupt's code in so far as it would hasten the revolution (Le Couteulx de Canteleu). A general Convent of Masons in France and abroad was convoked by the secret committee, February 15, 1785, and at this Congress the French Revolution and its propagation throughout Europe was resolved upon even to the decree of regicide.

As Louis Daste writes: -- "It was, in fact, on December 24, 1772, that the formation of the Grand Orient of France was proclaimed. On this day was carried out the concentration of all Masonic arms for the assault to be made on France." Ragon, the Jewish Masonic authority, tells us that on that date it was "solemnly declared that the former Grand Lodge of France ceased to exist, that it was replaced by a new National Grand Lodge, which would be an integral part of a new body which would administer the Order, under the name of Grand Orient of France" (Orthodox maconnique, 1853).

Introducing his recent book, "La Franc-Maçonnerie contre la France, 1941," de Poncins says: -- "Born of the disaster of 1870, the democratic Republic collapsed in the disaster of 1940, leaving to Marshal Petain's Government the formidable task of reconstructing a country decomposed by a corrupting regime. One of the first measures taken by Marshal Petain was the suppression of Freemasonry, and this suppression is based on legitimate motives. Let us note, in fact, that almost all governments of Europe have since 1919 successively taken analogous measures, each time following grave revolutionary troubles. Thus, therefore, republics, monarchies, dictatorships; Catholic countries, Protestants, Mussulmans, have reached through force of circumstances this conclusion that Freemasonry was a dangerous organisation; measures so general are not to be accounted for without serious reasons, and we are going to try to show briefly what Freemasonry really is, of which much is said but little known."

As de Poncins explains: -- "The problem which arises is as follows: is the revolutionary evolution of Freemasonry natural or is it derived from principles stronger than men to the point of leading them on in spite of themselves, or has it been deliberately conceived and premeditated by occult chiefs?"

Some would have it that Freemasonry is merely the expression of an anti-traditional, anti-spiritual philosophy. But others maintain that "Freemasonry does not confine its activities to the domain of ideas. During the last century there has not been a single revolutionary movement in which it has not co-operated...To take recent examples, during the revolutions of the Young Turks of 1905, Portuguese of 1908, Russian of 1917, Austrian, Hungarian and German of 1918, Spanish of 1931, it was Freemasonry which prepared the change of regime and the seizure of power..."

Speaking of the reaction of France to this occult domination, de Poncins concludes: -- "This domination was occult, and so cleverly conceived that until the war it was not believed in. Those who knew the situation had no means of educating public opinion because these secret forces held, in fact, all sources of information: publicity agencies, press agencies, journals, cinemas, theatres and great houses of editions, etc., and any attempted exposures, striking against the implacable barrage, was systematically stifled."

Finally, he sums up: -- "Briefly we must reconquer our country, fallen inwardly into the hands of the worst enemies of its traditions and of its true interests. We only just begin to catch a glimpse of the extent and complexity of the subterranean network which they have constituted and through which they hold the country. They must be dislodged from it one by one, and for that we must begin by exposing them. But they occupy here and there important posts; they always hold most of the levers of command (Whether they remain at the spot or act through intermediaries), and they prepare all sorts of complicities. The interior readjustment itself is rendered difficult by this occult seizure because the treason is everywhere: among the Communists, the Jews and Freemasons. The Communists betray according to officially proclaimed principles The Jews betray through historic fatality, through interest and through love of subversion. The Freemasons betray, consciously or unconsciously, in logical application of the subtle Masonic doctrines. With different tendencies and different interests, these three great groups find themselves allied in a common work of disintegration. Now they represent or inspire in France millions of individualities poisoned by the formidable propaganda, which has been practiced throughout the years."

And de Poncins, not without reason, feels that the issue of this subversion is graver for the future of his country than even the result of the war.

REPORT FROM THE READERS

FROM YONKERS, N.Y.

...I must express my severe displeasure with your having rehashed the John Lennon-deserved-it school's mistaken logic in the Sydney, Australia version of this country's more prejudiced slip-shod report ages (i.e. National Enquirer, Star, Globe) in stating Manson's deranged slaughter spree was "simply" the result of his playing Beatles songs backwards when in actuality, such psychotic studies as "Blood Cults", "Satan's Assassins", and "The Family" clearly outline Charles Manson's mind control of his female followers due to his performing oral sex on them whenafter having given them a very strong mind-altering drug, LSD 25, as was his own incorrigible psychopathological state attributable to his lengthy numbers of incarcerations and incessant use of so-called psychedelic (mind manifesting) drugs, prior to the Tate-LaBiancha slayings.

After all, what we have there is the first and seventh chakras being way too overstimulated. Picture, just as an illustration, lighting a fuse at both ends. Mid way we have the heart chakra becoming overloaded from both ends, perhaps irreversibly. Witness the tragic outcome of Manson's soul-winning regime. Apparently it's quite an effective technique at that. The saying 'Don't take it too heart' couldn't be a more appropriate admonishment in this case.

Witness and heed Manson's recent near-cremation, perpetrated by a Hare Krishna adherent jailmate, as a lesson in how karma finally indeed catches up with bad guys! .

If you would only pay closer attention to certain elements in Chapman's background, you'd see the Lennon killing more a politically motivated murder than a wrath-of-God-takes-justice-type one, as the Aussie paper's writer would appear inclined to believe.

FROM BERWYN, ILLINOIS

In CT #4 you emphasize the number 33 in connection with the murder of John Kennedy. I think that you should pay attention to the number 22. It was not only the date of Kennedy's assassination but many important events -- meetings, conferences, declarations, political murders etc. have taken place on the 22nd of a month. Secretary of Defense James Forrestal was thrown out of a window from Bethesda hospital on the 22nd (I think it was May 22, 1949, I am not sure of that). Germany invaded Russia on June 22, 1941. Kissinger was sworn as Secr. of State on the 22nd though it was Saturday. Now I cannot remember other events, once I had a list of them but I lost it. There are so many of them that it cannot be a coincidence.

Number 22 is not only 2 x 11 (hendekaglyph) but there is a more important aspect. The Hebrew alphabet has 22 letters and the last (22nd) letter is called THAV in Hebrew and this is a word which means MARK in English. Therefore it is a mark for those who understand that the agents of certain events belong to a certain organisation. This Hebrew letter or a Greek letter TAU (which is neither the last one nor the 22nd in the Greek alphabet but denotes the same sound) appeared on tombstones of Christians in the 1st century

A.D. Apparently it was a hint at REV.7:3. The Greek letter TAU is similar in shape to the Latin letter T and from these letters the shape of the cross was later derived. We do not know the shape of the tool for executions which was called CRUX (from which our word cross was derived) in Latin or STAVROS in Greek but most probably it was not like the present day cross, rather it was just a stake to which a convict was nailed. Also the letter T shows the main line limited by another line which is a symbol of death. In addition, two intersecting lines signify a transfer to another plane (world).

I hope that you will be able to use this letter for your tracking.

Conspiracy Notes

(1) SCOTLAND YARD VS. MASONRY. (From The Wanderer, 18, October, 1984) Edinburgh, Scotland -- With the approval of Metropolitan Police Commissioner Kenneth Newman and his deputy, Albert Laugharne, officers of Scotland Yard are being advised not to become, or remain, members of Freemasonry. In an article quoted in the Evening News of Edinburgh, Laugharne said that no senior officer should direct another officer not to join a Masonic lodge, but that policemen are advised not to join one because membership in the Masons could lead people to question police impartiality. The advice against joining the Masons will be included in Scotland Yard's Handbook of Guidance. Laugharne wrote that the Masons are a "very private institution" with "strange rites which smack to some of immaturity, being reminiscent of the secret societies of boyhood." The deputy commissioner further commented that "a perscient man will probably consider it wise to forego the prospect of pleasure and social advantage in Freemasonry so as to enjoy the unreserved regard of all those around him." Officers should "remember that your declaration of office as a constable must be paramount," Laugharne affirmed. "The responsibility it brings to be impartial does not cease when you leave a police station door at the finish of your daily duty. It must pervade all that you do, privately or publicly, and it must supercede any other loyalty you may have." Thomas Moffen, an assistant chief constable, is conducting a Scotland Yard inquiry into Freemasonry and the police.

(2) KILLING THEIR OWN? E.Edwin Austin of the Mutilation Data Center writes: "I have been jigsawing items together and came up with something that indicates CIA is killing it's own agents, the Reagan administration turning a blind eye. It is based on three 'unsolved' murders.

(a) Frank Nugan, Australia. Nugan was a partner in the Nugan Hand Bank which laundered CIA covert operations money and drug money for agents involved in drug traffic. Nugan Hand was the target of hate from Australian military intelligence for destabilization of the Australian government and causing the actual loss of election by one government.

(b) Congressman Larry McDonald. I have a scenario from British and Birch sources, with minor corroboration from outside sources such as media, that KAL 007 was actually a very clever assassination plot that had unknown persons 'tipping' Russian intelligence that McDonald would be on the plane with sophisticated electronics equipment from his intelligence agency, Western Goals, to pick up what he could about the weapons tests. McDonald was hated by the Russians with an undying passion. The whole idea of him flying over secret weapons tests, violating their airspace to do it, with all that electronic equipment, would absolutely horrify and terrify them.

Now a media item appears naming the Who and meshing with my scenario perfectly. The 'who' is CIA. (See Knight-ridder article, appearing in the Register, Santa Ana, California, Oct. 27, 1984. The article features the work of Yale University Professor David Pearson and is based on statistical analysis of events or lack thereof.)

(c) The alleged death of Mitchell Livingston Werbell III. This is a wild man whose name pops up all over the media in the context of a Russian-born mercenary turned contract CIA employee. A Penthouse article has Werbell hired by CIA to find a place to resettle heroin-producing tribesmen from Viet Nam, taken out to keep the VC from killing them off -- and apparently to assure a continuing supply of heroin, cut off when the VC took over. The Penthouse article says Werbell tried Haiti and told Baby Doc that if he didn't agree, Werbell would engineer a coup -- a Werbell specialty. Baby Doc laughed in Werbell's face and said 'Try it, Buster!' Werbell earned the enmity of Baby Doc, notorious for his assassination squad, one of the worst in the world. Eventually part of the tribesmen were resettled on the Jonestown site in Guyana and now we are getting rumors that Werbell is dead. I see three possibilities. (1) Werbell pushed Baby Doc too hard and got nailed. (2) Werbell was killed by anti-drug CIA agents. (3) Werbell, well known for his instinct for survival and his own group, is in hiding and putting out disinformation. Personally, I give a slight edge to (3) but it doesn't matter which for the purpose of this, since all three put Werbell smack dab in the middle of CIA sponsored drug smuggling. All three victims were either Nazi, drug or both. Reagan is running the most aggressive anti-drug program in centuries, with special emphasis on cutting down Nazi source drugs in South America. It follows that fringe CIA agents, prone to "go vigilante", would take on themselves the job of assassinating pro-drug CIA agents. It would be a gross error to assume that Reagan knows one solitary thing about such an activity. But you can bet he knows that there is no way one can neutralize a pro-drug CIA agent without killing him -- a disgruntled agent can badly hurt the agency -- it has happened many times to all known intelligence agencies. On the basis of prior Reagan activity, I would assume as a matter of course he is not about to order even a cursory investigation into possible CIA agents assassinating each other -- so long as the victims are pro-drug agents. I would like to hear from other CT readers on the subject of possible intra-CIA killings." (Mr. Austin can be reached at: Mutilation Data Center - 4623 E. Washington - Apt. 20 - Orange, CA. 92669.)

(3) WAS RASPUTIN CONTROLLED? Your editor always considered Rasputin a villain, but he may have been a victim of the Jewish Messianic movement (i.e. Communism) which seized Russia in 1917. In his book "The Murder of the Romanovs" (1935) by Paul Bulygin, Commander of the Personal Guard of the Dowager Empress, we find the following thought provoking information: "Prince Felix Yusupov, the man who did eventually kill Rasputin, said during the inquiry: 'More than once I saw in his (Rasputin's) study certain men who were strange to me. They appeared more often than not, when he was on his way to Tsarkoe Selo, or had just returned. On his return they promptly gathered around him, HELPED HIM

TO SOME DRINK (emphasis added), and always appeared to be asking him questions of some sort. I noticed, as I watched them, that they made written notes of his replies. I realised that Rasputin was a German spy. ...It seems to me however, that though his political activities were those of a German agent, this was not altogether deliberate and he was to some extent unconscious of the disastrous meaning of his actions for Russia.' The Official Investigator Sokolov reported that Yusupov had tried to find out from Rasputin who those strangers with note-books were. 'With a cunning smile,' said Yusupov, 'Rasputin answered: They are our friends; they are many particularly in Sweden: we call them the Green Men.' Curiously enough, the Postmaster-General of the time, Pokhvistnev, whose duty it was to see all the telegrams received by the Emperor, afterwards testified that he saw one addressed to the Tsarita and signed 'the Green Man.' " Although Prince Yusupov believed Rasputin to be a German agent, he later discovered the truth -- Rasputin was working for a Jewish secret society called the Greens who operated out of Sweden. In Islamic legend, "The Green One" is often referred to as "The Jew" and is linked to the legend of the "Wandering Jew." Rasputin later gave the Empress Alexandra a gift of two small emerald green dragons, which were among her possessions after her murder.

(4) THOSE GERMAN AGENTS. Since we mentioned above Prince Yusupov's belief that Rasputin was a German agent, we should point out that German Intelligence in that period was Jewish controlled. One of the top men was Max Warburg, whose brother Paul, gave us the Federal Reserve System. Another top German agent who was also a Jew was Israel Lazarevitch Helphand (code name, Parvus). According to Nesta Webster, Parvus "was found to be also an agent of the Illuminati, an active member of a secret society tracing its descent direct from Weishaupt." It was Parvus who inspired Lenin -- and who put Lenin aboard the famous "sealed train" which carried the revolutionaries into Russia. Webster, in her book "World Revolution" gives the racial composition of the men who were sent with Lenin aboard the sealed train as follows: "23 were Russian, 3 Georgian, 4 Armenian, 1 German and 128 Jewish." As most readers of CT know, there never was a Russian Revolution, but, rather a Jewish Revolution in Russia.

(5) HITLER AND THE OCCULT. Over the past several years there have been a number of books dealing with Hitler as an occultist or Satanist. They include such titles as "The Spear Of Destiny" by Trevor Ravenscroft, "The Occult and the Third Reich" by Jean-Michel Angebert, "Gods and Beasts" by Dusty Sklar, and many more. However, as we go through other literature, none of it pro-Nazi, we discover the following info. Hitler closed the Masonic Lodges. He also closed the lodges of the Ordo Templi Orientis (OTO), and the Theosophical Society. After Austria voted to become part of the Third Reich in 1938 (Yes, they voted. See "Germany and England" by Nesta Webster.), all Austrians who held government posts had to take oaths that they were not Freemasons or members of the Golden Dawn. One of the greatest experts on the occult, Dennis Wheatley, says there is no evidence linking Hitler to the occult. Now, you can go into most any book store and you will find these "Hitler the occultist" books. However, those same book stores will not stock a single title dealing with the Zionist Masters of the Occult. Our conclusions: Hitler's war was a war against the Occult -- and the purpose of these books is to bolster the rapidly deflating belief in the Holocaust Myth by presenting Hitler as a Satanist. After all, if Hitler were a Satanist, then the belief in the murdered 6 million is more believable.

(6) ROSEMARY'S BABY. (From "The Sun", Nov. 27, 1984) A 6 year-old girl recently rescued from a witches' coven has been found to be pregnant even though she is biologically still a virgin. She got pregnant at a black mass ceremony, and now her parents and clergymen are afraid she'll give birth to a real-life Rosemary's Baby. Doctors have no doubt the baby is due sometime in March of 1985. Meantime, the girl's physician, Dr. Brian Oxford, has asked the Church of England to conduct an exorcism. "There's no telling what that baby is going to be after all that child has been through," says Oxford. The girl is currently being kept at a secret location known only to police and church authorities. The "safe-house" is somewhere in the Eastern part of England..."This girl must have been involved in some sort of sexual ceremony," says Oxford. "She's very upset and keeps waking in the night and doing strange things. I am praying for her and treating her with tranquilizers."...The baby is healthy with some abnormalities, Oxford says. He declined to discuss the nature of the abnormalities, but rumors are circulating in the hospital where the girl was examined that the fetus has a tail and nubs of horns...Oxford claims he knows of one coven with 100 followers. At least 20 churches have been desecrated in recent months. Animal blood and excrement has been smeared on the altars and ornaments. The crucifixes have been stolen, twisted or turned upside down. The Archdeacon of Barnstaple, the Venerable Ronald Herniman says he is worried about the surge in the practice of black magic. "A decade ago desecration was almost unknown, but now it is prevalent," he says. In a bizarre incident a year ago, Royal Marines training on Dartmoor surprised a witches' coven in the middle of a rite. The crack commando unit dispersed the cavorting crown of naked men and women with smoke and concussion grenades.

(7) ARYAN BROTHERHOOD. (From The Coeur d'Alene Press, August 27, 1984, as quoted in the Christian Law Journal) San Francisco (UPI) A white supremacist convict gang that emerged in San Quentin Prison in the 1960's, The Aryan Brotherhood, has gone national and is "involved with the mob up to their ears," a newspaper reported today. The gang, with about 100 members outside of prison and another 100 still behind bars, has become a significant national crime organization allied to the Mafia in New York and Chicago, the San Francisco Chronicle said in its Monday edition. Former gang members say members of the brotherhood act as mob contract murderers, bodyguards, enforcers and dope dealers in and out of prison, the paper said. Former gang members say Aryan Brothers killed three key members of the "French Connection" heroin ring in federal prisons on orders of New York mobsters who wanted them silenced, the paper said. "Our information is that members of the brotherhood have always wanted to basically take over organized crime," says Bill Ellis, an intelligence analyst with the Los Angeles Police Department, according to the paper.

(8) BERMUDA TRIANGLE. (From the Globe, January 3, 1984) People who have disappeared without a trace in the Bermuda Triangle are alive and well in another world and will someday reappear no older than when they vanished, claims Roy Wirshing and Peter Cox. They believe most triangle victims have slipped through a magnetic crack into the mysterious world of the fourth-dimension, where time stands still -- or at least progresses at a vastly slower pace than our own. "This is a mind boggling concept to most people," say Wirshing, a retired teacher in Pompano Beach, Florida, and an expert on the many eerie disappearances in the Triangle -- between Bermuda, Puerto Rico and South Florida. He is writing a book about the 14 Marine airmen who vanished over the triangle 38 years ago. He adds: "I believe they will someday re-materialize in our three-dimensional world, having aged not a whit." Cox, a physicist, says the fourth-dimension concept was foreshadowed by Einstein's theory of relativity and has been proven by astro-physicists. The experts cite the case of the Eastern Airlines plane flying through the triangle that disappeared from radar scopes and lost radio communication for 10 minutes several years ago. When the plane landed, its pilot and passengers were unaware of the time loss, and puzzled officials found that all timepieces aboard the plane had lost 10 minutes..."When people are catapulted into that amazing world, time has no meaning," Wirshing says. "They could be there 10,000 years and be aware of the passage of no more than a few hours or a few days...Some day they find their way back through the crack and back into our world -- or our world a thousand years from now -- totally baffled by what they will find." Wirshing's concept that the dematerialized bodies of the unfortunate victims of the standing wave of the Bermuda Triangle could some day be re-materialized is contradicted by the information received by Page Bryant in 1974. Her research group asked this specific question of the alien dragon people with whom they were talking, through her: "Do you, at this time, have any of the people from the earth who are still alive?" "No, this was simply taking advantage of an unfortunate situation." "When you recovered these earth people, were their physical bodies still alive?" "No...Some died of heart failure, fright. Some lived for a very short while." "Do any still live?" "No." "Did any of them enter the underwater cave alive?" "Yes." "Did they see any of your people?" "No. It is not best. They died shortly afterward." "Couldn't you have saved them?"

"No, there was no way." (From "Encounters in the Devil's Triangle" by Page Bryant and James Chaplin, Zebra Books, 1978.)
